GST/HST APPLICABLE ON CUSTOMS BROKERAGE SERVICES

Notes

1. The term “customs brokerage services” are those services, made in respect of the importation of goods, of arranging for the release of goods, or the fulfilling of any requirement to account for the goods, to report, or provide information, or remit any amount.

2. Other services not included in the term “customs brokerage services” that may be provided by a customs broker include filing objections, appeals, redeterminations, reappraises, reviews, refunds, abatements, remissions, drawbacks or anything in relation to the foregoing.

3. Generally, any service provided by a customs broker, for a Canadian resident, is subject to either GST or HST.
Canadian Importer - Non-commercial (Casual) Goods

A customs brokerage service in respect of imported non-commercial (casual) goods is deemed made in a participating province if the provincial component of the HST is imposed on the goods at importation (or would be imposed if certain other provisions in the Excise Tax Act did not apply to relieve the imposition of the provincial component of the HST).

The provincial component of the HST applies in respect of an imported good when the good is imported by a resident of a participating province.

In other words, if the goods are subject to HST at importation (or would be, if they were not otherwise relieved by a provision in the Excise Tax Act), the customs brokerage service is deemed made in a participating province and subject to HST.

If imported non-commercial (casual) goods are not subject to the provincial portion of the HST at the time they are imported, the supply of customs brokerage services is considered made in a non-participating province and only GST applies in respect of the brokerage service.

Example: A customs brokerage service supplied by a customs broker in Alberta, who arranges for the release of non-commercial (casual) goods for a client resident in BC, is subject to HST at the rate of 12%, since the BC provincial component of the HST is imposed on the imported goods.

If the consumer were resident in Alberta, the brokerage service would be subject only to GST at the rate of 5%, since only GST applies in respect of the imported non-commercial (casual) goods.

Other services, that is:

Other services not included in the term "customs brokerage services” that may be provided by a customs broker include filing objections, appeals, redeterminations, reappraises, reviews, refunds, abatements, remissions, drawbacks or anything in relation to the foregoing.

The general place of supply rule for services applies.

These rules are found in the draft Regulations in Respect of the Place of Supply of Property and Services released by the Department of Finance on April 30, 2010. The Canada Revenue Agency has provided their interpretation of these rules in their publication B-103, Harmonized Sales Tax - Place of supply rules for determining whether a supply is made in a province.

The rules in the draft regulations that correspond to the four place of supply rules listed in B-103 are as follows:

Draft Regulations, paragraph 12.(1)(a)(b) and (c) are Rule 1 in B-103, page 26
Draft Regulations, paragraph 12.(2)(a)(i) is Rule 2 in B-103, page 30
Draft Regulations, paragraph 12.(2)(a)(ii) is Rule 3 in B-103, page 30
Draft Regulations, paragraph 12(2)(b) is Rule 4 in B-103, page 30

Under Rule 1, a supply of a service is deemed to be made in a province if, in the ordinary course of business of the supplier, the supplier:

- obtains only one address that is a home or a business address in Canada of the recipient, the home or business address in Canada of the recipient in the province, (this means that if the supplier of the service [the customs broker] has only one address of either a home or business for the recipient of the supply [their client] and that address is in a participating province, HST will apply to the service.

- obtains more than one address described above, the address in the province described above that is most closely connected with the supply, (this means that if the supplier of the service [the customs broker] has more than one address for the recipient of the supply [their client], a determination must be made with respect to which of these addresses is the address most closely connected to the supply. This is usually the contracting business address of the recipient. If not, it is likely the business address of the recipient that the supplier has the most contact with and that is most used by the suppliers in connection with the supply. If that address is in a participating province, HST will apply to the service) or,

- in any other case, obtains an address in Canada of the recipient that is most closely connected with the supply, where the supplier does not obtain a home or business address in Canada of the recipient, the address in Canada of the recipient that is most closely connected with the supply (this means that if the supplier of the service [the customs broker], does not obtain a home or business address of the recipient of the service, but in the ordinary course of business of the supplier, the supplier obtains an address in Canada of the recipient that is most closely connected with the supply, and that address is in a participating province, HST will apply to the service.)

If by virtue of any of Rule 1 it is determined that the address of the recipient of the supply of the service (the client) is in a participating province, the service will be deemed to be supplied in a participating province and be subject to HST.
If Rule 1 does not deem the supply to be made in a province, Rules 2 to 4 must be considered, in order.

Under Rule 2, if the Canadian element of the service is performed primarily (more than 50%) in the participating provinces, the supply is proposed to be deemed made in the participating province in which the greatest proportion of the Canadian element of the service that is performed in the participating provinces is performed.

This means that if under Rule 1 there is no address obtained of the recipient, the supply of the service to be made in the province in which the greatest proportion of the Canadian element of the service is performed.

If Rule 2 does not deem the supply of a service to be made in a participating province because the service is performed equally in two or more participating provinces, under Rule 3 the service is proposed to be deemed to be supplied in the participating province among those provinces that has the highest rate for the provincial component of the HST.

If two or more of the participating provinces in this case have the same rate for the provincial component, HST will be required to be charged by the supplier using that particular rate and the supply is proposed to be made in the specified province where the business address of the supplier that is most closely connected with the supply is located or, if the business address of the supplier that is most closely connected with the supply is not located in one of the specified provinces, in the specified province that is closest in proximity, determined in any reasonable manner, to the business address of the supplier that is most closely connected with the supply.

If Rule 1 does not deem the supply of the service to be made in a province and the Canadian element of the service is performed otherwise than primarily (50% or less) in the participating provinces, under Rule 4 the supply is proposed to be made in a non-participating province.

If it has been determined that the supply is made in a non-participating province, only GST will apply to the service.
Canadian Importer - Commercial Goods

| Customs Brokerage Services, that is: | The supply of customs brokerage services in respect of imported commercial goods is considered made in the province in which the goods are situated at the time of their release. The residence of the importer is not relevant for the determination of the place of supply.
Example: A customs broker located in Alberta arranges for the release of commercial goods that are located in BC. The customs broker will charge 12% HST on the customs brokerage services since the release took place in a participating province. If commercial goods are situated in Alberta at the time of their release, the customs brokerage service is subject only to 5% GST. |
| Services made in respect of the importation of goods, of arranging for the release of goods, or the fulfilling of any requirement to account for the goods, to report, or provide information, or remit any amount. | |
